MUSIC REVIEW: CALLOPE'S CALL FALL CONCERT

Ensemble brings exquisite singing with deeply considered expression

By Peter Jacobi

H-T Reviewer | pjacobi@heraldt.com

What an unusual calling is Calliope's Call. Here we have a Bloomington-based ensemble devoted to the performance of art songs, chansons, lieder, and that's all. Founded and artistically directed by mezzo-soprano Megan Roth, these musicians prepare and provide themed programs focused on exposing folks to the glories of the song literature.

On Saturday afternoon in St. Mark's United Methodist Church, Roth and three colleagues presented Calliope's Call's fall concert, intriguingly titled "In Search of Adventure, Cowboys, Gypsies, and Wanderers," a program repeated Sunday afternoon in Indianapolis and to be repeated again next month in Chestnut Hill, Massachusetts.

Roth, who has a lengthy list of credits in opera and choral music, chose two other singers with similar professional backgrounds, baritone Thomas Dreeze and soprano Dana Lynne Varga. The fourth member of the team is Shiela Kibbe, a pianist who serves as chair of the Collaborative Piano Department at the Boston University School of Music, which probably explains the why for that November concert in far off Chestnut Hill.

Kibbe had the busiest time of the lot, collaborating from start to finish, as the three singers took turns with the repertoire. She was excellent at her task, providing not just accompaniment but partnership. The chosen repertoire was wide-ranging and often unusual, dating from Mozart to the present. Each work received brief and helpful comment prior to the singing. And English supertitles were projected on a large screen, also a helpful decision.

The "present" in the repertoire came in the form of settings by American composer Dan Shore of Walt Whitman's "Song of the Open Road," commissioned by Calliope's Call. The settings, three of them, captured the unique flavor of Whitman's poetry. The three singers shared the music, each singing one of the songs.

Mezzo Roth then turned to Libby Larsen's "Cowboy Songs," a trio drawn from poetry by cowboy (Billy the Kid), cowgirl (Belle Starr), and American poet Robert Creeley, each song strong on characterization. Larsen also supplied soprano Varga with more distinctly American songs, these a cycle called "Songs from Letters: Calamity Jane to her daughter Janey." The words and music tell of a hard-working woman and mother, courageously facing the difficulties of life. Both sets were sung with honest passion.

Baritone Dreeze contributed two sets of French songs about the wandering Don Quichotte: Jacques Ibert's "Quatre Chansons de Don Quichotte" and Maurice Ravel's "Don Quichotte a Dulcinee." These proved to be rich material for Dreeze, who imprinted them with encompassing moods that reflected the knight's engagement with his world of dreams and fantasies.

Roth added "Three Melodies" by Manuel de Falla, songs beautifully Spanish in character and style. Varga took on four songs by Antonin Dvorak, one of them the well-known "Songs My Mother Taught Me," the others not so well-known but tantalizingly lyrical.

In sum, one heard some exquisite singing and, certainly, done with deeply considered expression. These singers had stories to tell, and did so with eloquence. To wind up the concert, the three joined their voices for a radiant touch of Mozart: "Ecco quell fiero istante" from his six nocturnes, one about the sadness of separation.

'Downton Abbey' season to begin Jan. 3

Associated Press

NEW YORK — The final season of the popular British drama "Downton Abbey" will begin on Jan. 3, leading up to a finale on the first weekend of March, PBS announced Monday.

The show has been both a creative and ratings triumph for the network. On the Sunday before its final episode, PBS will air a marathon of the season up to that point and a behind-the-scenes program on how the show was made.

The network will also try to use "Downton Abbey" as a launching pad for "Mercy Street," a Civil War drama premiering Jan. 17 directly after an episode of the outgoing hit.
